

On Line Resources on the Renaissance and Reformation in the 16th Century

Martin Luther and the Protestant Reformation

<http://www.projectwittenberg.org/>

An evolving project of documents and resources on Martin Luther and the Protestant Reformation. This is a useful source for student research projects.

<http://christianityinview.com/protestant/timeline.html>

Timeline of Reformation events, including background information on the religious denominations and biographies of the reformers.

<http://martinluther.ccws.org/index.html>

Primary and secondary sources relating to Martin Luther and the Protestant Reformation

<http://www.lutheranonline.com/lo/894/FSLO-1328308894-111894.pdf>

Full text of Luther's The Freedom of a Christian (1520)

<http://www.history.com/topics/reformation>

Collection of video programs on Reformation Era events from The History Channel series.

<http://reformationhistory.org/firstreformation.html>

Resources on the Reformed/Presbyterian Reformation movement in Scotland and Ireland in the 16th century.

<http://www.historytoday.com/early-modern-16th-18thc/reformation?page=1>

Archives from History Today of published articles from 2000-2009 relevant to the Renaissance and Reformation history of the 16th century. All articles require a subscription but a one week subscription for about $10 is available.

<http://www.historyworld.net/wrldhis/PlainTextHistories.asp?historyid=ad03>

A concise outline of the events and issues relating to the Protestant Reformation beginning in the 15th century. This information is general and accurate but not recommended for research based essays or papers.

<http://www.reformationtheology.com/history/>

A listing of documents on the early Christian Church, Calvin, and opinions reflecting the views of the sponsors of the website. There are documents which can be used for research.

Renaissance

<http://everyhistory.org/music/timeline.html>

Year-by-Year timeline of events with images of the 16th century. Web site also includes a timeline for all centuries through the present.

<http://www.albrecht-durer.org>

Pictures and biographical information on the Northern Renaissance artist, Albrecht Durer.

<http://www.raphaelsanzio.org>

Pictures and biographical information on the Renaissance artist, Raphael.

<http://www.titian-tizianovecellio.org>

Pictures and biographical information on the Renaissance artist, Titian

<http://www.thomasmorestudies.org>

Website on the life of Thomas More

<http://www.loc.gov/exhibits/vatican/humanism.html>

A large collection of documents with supporting explanations from a museum exhibition on the Renaissance at the Library of Congress. Of particular importance, is the collection on humanism.

http://www.shsu.edu/~his_ncp/Renn.html

A text from a professor at Sam Houston State University providing a general overview of the history of the Renaissance. The text is an excerpt from Philip Van Ness Myers, Medieval and Modern History (Boston: Ginn and Company, 1905), pp. 251-274].